D. Housing census characteristics

1. Housing information

What definition did you apply in this census for housing unit?

A Housing Unit is a building or buildings used for living purposes at the time of the census.

What definition did you apply in this census for conventional dwelling?

Conventional dwellings are those found in housing units classified as of the 'separate-detached' or 'attached' type.

Separate House-Detached

This is the most common type of unit. This is the type usually constructed for occupation by a single household and which has open space on all four sides. Duplex houses separated by garages were included in this category.

Attached Units

All units which are joined together by at least one wall. These include apartment buildings, townhouses, urbanas, quadrominiums etc.

Are vacant units included in the enumerated conventional dwellings?

No

What definition did you apply in this census for room?

The term "room" is taken to include those used for general living purposes such as bedrooms, dining rooms, drawing rooms, family rooms, studios, helpers' rooms. Included also are rooms used for professional and business services. Excluded are garages, bathrooms, toilets, kitchens, verandahs, passages, closets, foyers, and the like. Where partitions of a durable nature are utilized the partitioned area is regarded as a room. Use of curtains to separate sections of a room is not considered however. Included in the count are all rooms as defined even if they are not all used on a regular basis. Each room was counted only once. In instances where rooms are used by more than one household, they are counted and assigned to only one household.
