QUALITY CONTROL OF TRADE DATA INPUT

+ Checking volume versus volume for individual record (experience-based, regularity of transaction of company,...)

- ⊙ HS code checking: Check if standard HS classification used exactly or not. Customs Statistics spend a lot of time for checking HS code, because:

+ Tariff schedule: often changes.

+ Customs brokers are not developed.

+ Undervaluation.

- Incorrect HS code lines are highlighted in blue. So we correct the fault depend on product name, company name...

QUALITY CONTROL OF TRADE DATA INPUT

- ◉ Country of origin checking: following main products of imports and exports (ex: cotton can not be made in Singapore, steel can be imported from Japan, but wasn't from Jordan,...)
- ◉ Other relevant documents checking: Cross-check of information in the C/O (HS code, country of origin, ..); Customs valuation Form for Import; Invoice (value, volume, ...)

QUALITY CONTROL OF TRADE DATA INPUT

- Use of Revised Kyoto Convention: Not completely follow definition of Customs procedures under Revised Kyoto Convention.
 - + In Vietnam, we have a very complicated customs regime/procedure code and they are different from other countries.
 - + There are 6 main customs procedure codes are applied in Vietnam Customs in present: Home use; Investment; Processing type 1; Processing type 2; Temporary admission, other procedures.

QUALITY CONTROL OF TRADE DATA INPUT

- In sum, almost all possible errors had been found in Headquarter (Statistics Division) which will be sent back to field Customs checkpoints and in principal receive corrected/verified data after 5 days.

QUALITY CONTROL OF TRADE DATA OUTPUT

- Trends: unit value range for all main imports and exports.
- Checking of growth rates: Growth rates of import and export total value; value and volume of main imports and exports; total values/products by country (In principal, Import - Export growth rates of every market does not change very much every month. If there are dramatical changes of importation from any country, we must recheck).
