INTRODUCTION

1. The United Nations Statistical Commission at its twenty-ninth session (11-14 February 1997) decided that a revision of Customs Areas of the World should be one of the priorities in methodological work in the area of international trade statistics.¹ Following this decision of the Commission, the United Nations Statistics Division (UNSD) conducted a survey of countries to collect information regarding their statistical territories.
2. In cooperation with members of the Task Force on International Trade Statistics,² UNSD developed a special questionnaire which was sent to countries on 11 May 1999. By May 2000, 128 countries had responded.
3. This publication contains a list of the questions which were contained in the questionnaire; an explanation of concepts used or related to the questions; country responses³ organized in alphabetical order; and an annex listing agencies and persons responsible for completion of the questionnaire. The country presentations are standard, with the numbers representing questions asked and the cells immediately below the question numbers containing the country responses. The possible responses are: Yes, Yes*, No, No*, n/a (not applicable), and n/a*. An asterisk (*) indicates that a comment is provided in a footnote. If no response was provided the cell is left blank.
4. The main results of the survey can be summarized as follows: the statistical territory of most of the countries coincides with their economic territory, and geographical territory (68.0% in both cases).⁴ The statistical territories coincide even more closely with the customs territories (in 80.8% of the cases) which reflects the fact that the majority of countries use customs records as their main source of data.

¹ Official Records of the Economic and Social Council, 1997, Supplement No. 4 (E/1997/24), para. 39 (a). Customs Areas of the World (United Nations Publication, Sales No. E.89.XVII.12) was published in 1989 and contained a brief description of customs areas which UNSD was able to obtain from countries, or which it derived from national publications or other sources. The focus on customs areas was warranted by compilation practices of the countries: most of them compiled their trade statistics based on when goods crossed the customs border.

² The Task Force includes representatives of the following: Department of Economic and Social Affairs of the United Nations Secretariat (Statistics Division, Macroeconomics Division), Economic Commission for Europe, Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific, Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean, Economic Commission for Africa, Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia, United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, World Bank, International Monetary Fund, World Trade Organization, International Trade Center, Inter-American Development Bank, Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development, Statistical Office of the European Communities and World Customs Organization.

³ Some responses have been edited by UNSD.

⁴ Several countries indicated that their statistical territory coincides with their economic, geographical or customs territory, with certain exceptions.

5. A distribution (in %) of country responses to questions regarding inclusion of various elements in the statistical territory is presented in the table below.⁵

Question #	Territorial elements	Statistical territory
		Includes	Excludes	Not applicable
4.1	Premises where inward processing is carried out	52.8	26.4	19.2
4.2	Industrial free zones	29.6	38.4	30.4
4.3	Commercial free zones	26.4	41.6	28.8
4.4	Customs warehouses	53.6	40.0	7.2
4.5	Enclaves of other countries	24.0	57.6	5.6
4.6	Enclaves in other countries	20.8	53.6	8.8
4.7	Enclaves of international organizations	27.2	58.4	16.0
4.8	Territorial waters and continental shelf	33.0	43.0	24.0
4.9	Offshore territories, possessions, etc.	14.4	60.8	26.4

6. Forty-five per cent of the countries indicated that they are members of a customs union. In 76% of such cases the foreign trade statistics of the countries cover not only trade with third countries but also intertrade with the other member states of the customs union of which the reporting countries are members.

7. Countries are encouraged to review their responses and provide their comments/ revisions to: Mr. Hermann Habermann, Director, United Nations Statistics Division, DC2-1420, United Nations, NY 10017; or by fax to (212)963-9851; or by e-mail to "tradestats@un.org". Countries which did not respond to the questionnaire and are not represented here are encouraged to send their responses for inclusion in the UNSD database and in future revised editions of this publication.

Questions

4.2	industrial free zones
4.3	commercial free zones
4.4	customs warehouses

	in respect of the right to fish or to exploit fuels or minerals below the seabed
4.9	offshore territories, possessions, dependencies, islands, etc.
4.10	other territorial elements?
5	Is your country a member of a customs union?
	If "Yes"
5.1	Do the data cover both trade with third countries and intertrade with the member states?
5.2	Do data cover only trade with third countries and exclude intertrade with the member states?
5.3	Is foreign trade of the country included in foreign trade statistics of the union and not available separately?

Explanation of concepts used in or related to the questionnaire

8. The statistical territory of a country or area is "the territory with respect to which data are being collected";⁶ that is, goods which enter or leave the statistical territory are to be recorded in the external trade statistics.

9. The economic territory of a country consists "of the geographic territory administered by a government within which persons, goods and capital circulate freely"⁷ and includes:

(a) Airspace, territorial waters, and continental shelf lying in international waters over which the country enjoys exclusive rights or over which it has, or claims to have, jurisdiction in respect of the right to fish or to exploit fuels or minerals below the seabed;

(b) Territorial enclaves in the rest of the world (clearly demarcated areas of land which are located in other countries and which are used by the government which owns or rents them for diplomatic, military, scientific or other purposes - embassies, consulates, military bases, scientific stations, information or immigration offices, aid agencies, etc. - with the formal political agreement of the government of the country in which they are physically located);

(c) Any free zones, or bonded warehouses or factories operated by offshore enterprises under customs control (these form part of the economic territory of the country in which they are physically located)."⁸

In the case of maritime countries their economic territory "includes any islands belonging to that country which are subject to exactly the same fiscal and monetary authorities as the mainland, so that goods and persons may move freely to and from such islands without any kind of customs or immigration formalities".⁹ The economic territory of a country does not include the territorial enclaves used by foreign governments or international organizations which are physically located within the geographical boundaries of that country.¹⁰

10. Customs territory is "the territory in which the customs law of a state applies in full." ¹¹

11. Temporary admission (of goods) for inward processing "...means the customs procedure under which certain goods can be brought into a customs territory conditionally relieved from payment of import duties and taxes; such goods must be intended for re-exportation within a specific period after having undergone manufacturing, processing or repair...Operations allowed under the temporary admission for inward processing procedure may be carried out in premises designated as warehouses for inward processing..." ¹²

12. Customs warehousing "means the customs procedure under which imported goods are stored under customs control in a designated place (a customs warehouse) without payment of import duties and taxes...Storage in customs warehouses should [also] be allowed for goods which are entitled to repayment of import duties and taxes when exported...[and] goods that have previously been dealt with under another customs procedure...[This] makes it possible for the customs authorities to grant discharge of such other customs procedure or to repay the import duties and taxes, as the case may be, before the goods are actually re-exported." ¹³ "Warehoused goods...[are] allowed to undergo usual forms of handling to improve their packaging or marketable quality or to prepare them for shipment, such as breaking bulk, grouping of packages, sorting and grading and repacking...it is not intended to authorize any change in the essential character of the goods themselves." ¹⁴

13. Free zones. "The term 'free zone' means a part of the territory of a State where any goods introduced are generally regarded, insofar as import duty and taxes are concerned, as being outside the customs territory and are not subject to the usual customs control." ¹⁵ "A distinction may be made between commercial and industrial free zones. In commercial free zones the permitted operations are generally limited to those necessary for the preservation of the goods and the usual forms of handling to improve their packaging or marketable quality or to prepare them for shipment. In industrial free zones processing operations are authorized." ¹⁶ "By specifying that the goods are not subject to the usual customs control, the definition draws attention to the fact that the customs control exercised over goods placed in free zones is more flexible than that applicable to goods stored in customs warehouses, for example, or admitted under the temporary admission for inward processing procedure. Whereas in exercising the usual customs control the customs authorities have at their disposal a whole series of specific measures designed to ensure compliance with the laws and regulations which they are responsible for enforcing, in the case of free zones they normally have recourse to general surveillance measures only. Thus, premises situated in free zones are not usually subject to permanent customs surveillance. The control measures applied to goods during their stay in the free zone are generally reduced to an absolute minimum and are principally concerned with the relevant documentation." ¹⁷ "In some countries [a free zone] is also known under various other names, such as 'free port', 'free warehouse'". ¹⁸

14. A customs union is an entity formed by a customs territory, replacing two or more territories and having in its ultimate state the following characteristics:

- a common customs tariff and a common or harmonized customs legislation for the application of that tariff;
- the absence of any customs duties and charges having equivalent effect in trade between the countries forming the customs union in products originating entirely in those countries or in products of other countries in respect of which import formalities have been complied with and customs duties and charges having equivalent effect have been levied or guaranteed and if they have not benefited from a total or partial drawback of such duties and charges;
- the elimination of restrictive regulations of commerce within the customs union". ¹⁹

4.8 Norway complies with the rules emanating from the 1982 UN convention on Ocean Rights regarding the right to fish and to exploit resources below the seabed. In the exploitation of the petroleum resources, this translates into the median line principle, defining the border of the Norwegian part of the continental shelf as a line where all points are in equal distance from the neighbouring countries, and Norway's base lines for determining the national sea territories. Along the coast Norway applies a fishery border of 12 nautical miles (about 22 kilometers), and a special fishery zone of 200 miles (370 kilometers) around Jan Mayen.
